Bus & Coach
Association NSW

How Does BusNSW Work?

BusNSW's greatest asset is its members who dedicate their time and expertise to advancing public transport.

BusNSW is divided into branches to ensure all members have a say. The country and coach branches appoint delegates who, along with the metropolitan branch members, elect a Board of Management. The Board prioritises and determines the program of work and appoints an Executive Director to manage a small team of staff.

This ensures that BusNSW remains focused on the priorities of members.

Into The Future

BusNSW represents a diverse range of bus and coach operators and industry suppliers. The association's governance structure is set up to ensure small and large organisations, family businesses, private companies and multi-nationals, from across the state are represented at an industry level.

The bus and coach industry faces ongoing change due to population growth, energy transition, the digital economy, climate change and evolving technology. BusNSW members will continue to play a key role in making NSW a better place to live via the provision of safe, efficient and sustainable bus and coach services.
